Everybody's Talking

Lost heirlooms: At a small hospital in Iowa (U.S.), a routine visit turned stressful when a woman realized a pair of family rings had been thrown out by mistake. She'd wrapped them in a napkin before an imaging appointment, then forgot about them until it was too late. Once staff heard what happened, the problem became a shared mission across departments working together. Waste crews set aside bags from the compactor while an imaging technician brought in a portable X-ray unit. One by one, the bags were scanned until the rings finally appeared on screen. The search took time and patience, but no one rushed it. For the woman, the effort mattered as much as the recovery itself that day.

Lionfish lunch: In parts of the Mediterranean, an invasive fish has been harming local sea life, and people are responding in a straightforward way. Lionfish have spread quickly through these waters and face few natural predators, allowing their numbers to grow. Instead of relying only on divers to remove them, fishers are now catching them for food. Cooks in places like Cyprus have learned how to remove the spines safely and prepare the meat at home or in restaurants. Once cleaned, the fish is simple to cook and fairly priced. Putting lionfish on menus gives fishers a reason to catch more of them. Over time, regular fishing could help protect native species while supporting local work.

Feather light: Birds-of-paradise are already known for bright colours and showy feathers, but researchers found another feature hiding in plain sight. When museum specimens were placed under ultraviolet light, many parts of their feathers gave off a faint yellow-green glow. This wasn't limited to one species, as the effect appeared across most of the tropical birds that were tested. The discovery happened while scientists were studying light effects in other animals and decided to test bird collections nearby. Birds can see more colours than humans, so this glow may be visible to them during courtship displays. Species that stick with one partner showed less glowing than others. The finding suggests these birds may be using signals people can't see.

Open range: In Montana (U.S.), conservation workers have been pulling out long stretches of old barbed wire to let the prairie move again. The effort focuses on land where fences once broke up grasslands and limited how animals traveled across them. By removing unused wire, large wildlife can follow natural paths without getting tangled or blocked. The project connects neighbouring landscapes that had been split by past ranching and property lines. Where fences are still required, they're replaced with designs that animals and birds can pass more safely. This slow, hands-on work is part of restoring how the plains once functioned. Over time, the land begins to behave less like managed parcels and more like one shared space again.

Lucky numbers this week: This week's odds favour Cancer winners with the luckiest number being 14.

Did You Know...

Name oddity: Only two countries officially start with the word "the." The Bahamas and The Gambia include it in their formal names, which is derived from how each place was originally described by its landscape.

Eye spectrum: Two people can share blue, brown, or green eyes, yet the colours are never an exact match. Tiny differences in shade make each iris unique. This variation even appears in identical twins.

Core shift: When it's cold, your body pulls blood away from your hands, feet, ears, and nose to protect vital organs. This helps keep your core warm, but it's why fingers and toes feel cold first during chilly outdoor weather.

Film faces: Early black-and-white movies could not record certain colours properly, so red tones looked dark on screen. To avoid dull faces, actors often wore blue, green, or yellow makeup, making film sets look strange in person.

Name echo: Diacope is a speaking pattern where a word is repeated with a brief pause between. The famous line "Bond, James Bond," from the James Bond films, uses this echo, which helps make an ordinary name stick in people's minds.

On the Lighter Side

Knock! Knock! Who's there? Toothy. Toothy who? Toothy is the day after Monday.

Why was the Incredible Hulk such a great gardener? He had a green thumb!

I got fired from my job flipping burgers. I didn't turn up enough.

Show me some skunks in the Marine Corps and I'll show you a phew good men.

Mick: Did anyone laugh when you fell on the ice?
Rick: No, but the ice made some awful cracks.
